Details

If an overseas adventure is on the cards, and you're looking for the convenience of a suitcase with the practicality of a backpack, the AViANT Access Pro should be right up your street. This design opens up like a suitcase so you can access the main compartment and has internal compression straps to streamline your gear. The removable bag sections off your dirty clothes or shoes and the front access and four grab handles ensure versatility. It features a back system with ergonomically shaped padding and a lightweight flexible spring steel frame that provides tension for the back mesh. There's an integrated cover which allows you to stow the backpack straps while it goes through airport security. Plus, there's a daypack for shorter trips, which features a convenient padded laptop compartment. The hybrid versatility of the AViANT Pro 70 from Deuter will make it the perfect travel companion on your next travel expedition.
